The above calculations show what Mr. Jeanneret's salary might be estimated to be on various bases for next academic year, with the Registrarship in the first two cases.

Salary as it ought to have been for the present year 1918-'19

$2500 plus $500 for Registrar's office - ~~1~~ = $3000.

This arrangement was prevented solely by the absence of the President, which precluded the promotion of Mr. Jeanneret to higher rank (Assistant Professorship) at once.

It was Mr. Jeanneret's own proposal that the promotion and increase should be postponed till the year 1919-'20. It was, again, his own voluntary action in declining to accept the notification of this increase in his salary, sent him by a misunderstanding on the part of Sir Edmund Walker, that has deprived him of the advantages of his promotion during the current year. It would surely be ungenerous on the part of the University to take advantage of the possibility of basing an objection to Mr. Jeanneret's receiving more than the bare $2500 for 1919-20 on so purely technical a ground.
